Hello,

I hope you all are enjoying the month and are ready for a successful and productive week! Below are some updates from the Graduate Student Association (GSA).

Side note: I recently found out a grant I submitted was not funded, but I am planning on resubmitting and have high hopes it will be funded this time around. I share this to remind you that if something doesn't go how you expected in grad school (or life), you are most definitely not alone. Take it as a learning experience and keep pushing forward!
